Preparation key to smooth NABC

"Our volunteers were prepared," says Tournament Chair Kathy Angstadt Hansen.

The committee has been working for three years. No detail was too small to be overlooked.

"The first thing we did was to decide on our theme and then design the logo," says Hansen. "After that, we held our three weeks of promotional games, we sold tee shirts, sold games and held many different types of raffles to raise funds.

"It took a lot of planning and hard work," says Hansen."I've had great committee chairs."

Hansen, who was called a "dynamo" by District 20 Director Jeff Taylor, was a reluctant tournament chair. "I turned it down three times," she says. "It took awhile for me to give up playing and decide to do this."

Gates, Gitelman meet young players

Bridge players from local middle schools played bridge here yesterday and were in for a treat. After the game, Microsoft founder Bill Gates and Bridge Base Online developer Fred Gitelman dropped by to talk with the youngsters.

The young players asked Gates questions. "When did you start playing bridge?"

Gates: "We always played card games in my family when I was growing up. I started playing bridge when I was 11."

"Does your wife play bridge?"

Gates: "My wife plays social bridge. She doesn't come to tournaments like this."

"Do your kids play bridge?"

Gates: "My kids are 13 and 10 and we've started teaching them bridge. We play other card games, too."

The youngsters are part of the Reno Youth Bridge organization. Twenty-four of them came the first Saturday. Thirteen played yesterday, and were thrilled to meet Gates.

"It was great to meet him," said Sidney Inouye. When quizzed about whether she had asked any questions of Gates, Alexis Jones said, "Sorta." Gitelman also posed for a photo with the

A newspaper deal ruined

When declarer Margie Gwozdzinsky saw the dummy, she created a plan. She had to lose one spade and one heart, so the key to the deal was the club suit. Anybody could finesse East for the $_J$, but she had other ideas. Gwozdzinsky was playing with Bill Rosenbaum – both are of New York City.

West led the ◆Q taken in dummy. Declarer advanced the ◆7 to the jack and the king. West exited with the ◆J, and Gwozdzinsky won and led a spade to the jack. When East won the ace, declarer was pretty sure then that West had the ♣J. She planned, therefore, to win the return, draw the last trump, play the ◆A and ruff a heart to strip out the hand. She could then lead a club to the king and West would be endplayed. He would have to lead a club around to her ◆10, or concede a ruff and a sluff.

When East won the AA, however, he exited with the 49. "Once again, you ruined my newspaper hand," said Gwozdzinsky.

Sure enough, now Gwozdzinsky didn't need the endplay. She could play the club suit and lose only one trick without doing anything fancy.

No smoking

There is no smoking in the playing areas or the hallways outside. You can smoke in the casino area except where signs say otherwise.

Bid Box Alerts and Announcements

When using bid boxes, the ACBL requires that players tap the Alert strip and say "Alert" at the same time.

When making an Announcement, use the Announcement word (such as "transfer") and tap the Alert strip at the same time.

A player who Alerts or Announces a bid must make sure his opponents are aware that an Alert or Announcement has been made.

Aggression pays off

Bridge players know to fight for each partscore at matchpoints, but how far should they go? Doug Doub of West Hartford CT and Adam Wildavsky of New York City answered that question on this deal from the first-final session of the Silodor Open Pairs:

Even though he only had 3 high-card points, Doub refused to let the opponents play 1NT. This was a good decision because North-South can defeat 1NT one trick, but that would lead to a matchpoint score of 22 on a 64 top. When Doub was doubled in 2♣, he ran to 2♥ which would make. Now, East-West judged well not to double that contract, and competed to 2♠ which Wildavsky doubled.

Doub led the \blacklozenge J which held the trick. He continued with the \blacklozenge 10, covered and won with the ace, instead of the king. Wildavsky knew that his partner didn't have many high-card points, but expected him to have the \blacktriangledown K (rather than the \clubsuit Q). He was trying to let him know it was safe to switch to a heart when he got in again.

Wildavsky continued the suit preference by leading the ♦6. West discarded a heart and North ruffed with the ♠Q. Doub switched to a heart, won in dummy. Declarer played a low spade, which Wildavsky won with the king. He continued with the ♦K. Declarer ruffed and led a spade to the jack, Wildavsky ducked and the contract couldn't be made. If he continued to lead spades, Wildavsky could tap declarer out. If he led side suits, he would eventually be able to ruff a club.

Plus 100 for North-South was worth 47 on a 64 top.

Behavior before committees

At this tournament we have had several unfortunate incidents of poor behavior by players during and after appeals committee hearings. We would like to remind everyone that, per the Laws of Duplicate Bridge, "an offending player should be ready to pay any penalty or rectification graciously or to accept any adjusted score awarded by the tournament director."

This applies to appeals committees as well, and it applies equally to a player who does not believe he has committed an offense. There is no excuse for showing disrespect to a director or a committee, and such behavior will not be tolerated. Our committees are composed of volunteers who know that after every decision they make at least one party will be unhappy. Please don't make the job any worse than it is already!

JUST FOR NEW PLAYERS

Learning from disasters By Lynn Berg

Playing with a partner I've enjoyed for more than 19 years, we had a bidding misunderstanding that anyone would think we could have avoided.

I did the wrong thing using Gerber, and we missed an easy 7NT that would have been worth a lot of matchpoints. It's not exactly a disaster, but it's an error that should not happen in a practiced partnership.

The moral of this sad story? There's more than one! First, partner forgave me. This happened in the middle of the game, and neither of us allowed the error to distract us into making even more errors. Second, we reviewed our agreement, and I hope we won't make this mistake again.

Of course, we'll find something new and different to mess up, like any one else. We ended up placing fairly well that day, reminding us that one board does not make or break a matchpoint session.

Playing teams, a disaster can lose a match, but in a pairs game, one deal was only one-twenty-sixth of the scores for the session. We can overcome even a zero as long as we don't let it ruin more of the game. Often we can be surprised by how good or bad a particular result turns out to be. It's not easy to judge, especially when the game is being scored with pickup slips rather than the travelers most of us are used to in our home clubs.

You need to be clear about whether the poor result was the result of an accident, a misunderstanding or even horrible breaks (such as the deal where we had a 3-2 fit with the A-K-Q but one opponent had six cards in the suit, headed by the J-10 – ugh!).

An accident? Opening 1NT when it was left-hand opponent's bid, not having the bid accepted and thus barring partner. The pair missed an easy plus 650 for 4♥ making five. Whether the error is a revoke, a bid out of turn, or any of the other many accidents we can have, there's no point in discussing these disasters. Partner certainly didn't mess up on purpose, rarely makes such errors and probably won't again for quite awhile. And the culprit is already mortified without any comments from you. Mark it A for accident and forget about it.

The same advice pertains when you make a reasonable bid and run into some sort of defensive buzz saw. Be aware of the bad breaks and realize that someone else probably had the same troubles. A truth of matchpoints is that misery loves company. You won't be the only pair who experienced the hideous split. You can also be the victim of superior or lucky action by the opponents. If 10 tricks are easy but only your opponents bid the game, you've been had through no fault of your own. Try marking that F for a fix.

Misunderstandings are another issue. A friend said he played Jacoby 2NT responses to major suit openings. As he had learned the bid, opener's rebid of 3 ♦ would show a singleton and 4♦ would show a void. But that's not the way his partner learned the convention. She thought 3♦ showed zero or one while 4♦ showed a good five-card suit. Talk about miscommunication, and this from a pair who did discuss what they were playing. You need to find out if the problem stems from differing approaches or interpretations, from applying the wrong principle or from not having the tools to handle the problems presented by the deal.

In this last case, don't just go conventionhunting to try to solve your problems. Ask some sensible questions: Have we had trouble before with hands like this? Does this situation come up enough to warrant changing our agreements? It can be a good idea to talk about the problem with a better player whom you respect. If you have a hand record and can be accurate about what happened, you'll be more likely to get pertinent comments.

It's a truism that we don't win bridge sessions, we lose them. Avoiding errors is probably more important than any spectacular coups.

Thinking bridge By Eddie Kantar

enough to bid anything intelligent at this level and East is not strong enough to raise to 4♥. West promises about six-plus tricks for the 3♥ bid, and East can only offer two sure tricks in return. It doesn't add up. When partner preempts, add tricks to tricks, not points to points! South has nothing more to say with a balanced minimum.

Defensive commentary: South reads the lead as shortness. Holding $47 \times (x)$, the proper lead is low because diamonds is an unsupported suit. Had North supported diamonds, the proper lead would be the 7 to deny an honor. South cashes the ♦A and ♦K as North discards a discouraging club. At this point South knows, or strongly suspects, that North has the AA, given the fact that a non-vulnerable preempt shows a strong suit and little else. If West's distribution is a likely 1-7-4-1, South needs North to underlead the A to be able to give North a second ruff! At trick three, South leads the ♦8, the higher of his two remaining diamonds, a suit-preference card asking North to return the higher-ranking side suit – spades. If South wants a club return, South returns the $\diamond 2$. When giving partner a ruff, tell partner which suit to return!

Assuming North recognizes the §8 as asking for a spade, does South have a singleton spade or the king? If South had a singleton spade, South would have shifted to a spade at trick two to set up a crossruff. It is more likely that South has the §K, in which case it may be vital to lead a low spade. After all, if declarer has a singleton spade, North cannot afford to play the §A first. If North leads a low spade at trick four, as requested, South sticks up the king and returns a diamond to defeat the contract. Nice defense.

It was a cold winter night twenty years ago When I found the courage to make my debut And head, alone, for the duplicate Known on campus as the Thursday Zoo.

I'd heard this club was a tough one, That it had launched many a bridge career. Woolsey, Martel, Ewen and the Bjerkans Had all started playing here.

But one look at this group and I understood How the "Zoo" had earned its name. The room was packed with loud, rowdy men. I was the only woman in the game.

I meekly approached the director, who said He'd fix me up if an "odd person" came. Some serious arm-twisting later, Odd Person and I had a game.

The director scribbled on the recap sheet. I took a peek when he was done. We were listed as "New Girl & Victim," Followed by the numbers "100:1."

Odd Person was an undergrad Who boasted he had "experience." He was third in the last club championship And he had been playing six whole months.

He sat me down and began rattling off A litany of confusing conventions. He said we had to play them all And I would have to pay attention.

This is a mental game, he preached at length, So I promised that I'd try real hard To concentrate on every bid, On each and every card.

A constant clamor filled the room. This was the wildest club in town. But the racket didn't really rattle me Until the final round. "Now don't be nervous," Odd Person hissed.
"Here comes the best pair in the game."
For what was about to happen,
Perhaps those words would be to blame.

With their arrival came the major source Of the roar in the room that night. On my left was a loudmouthed comic And his straight man was on my right.

The Mouth hogged the play on the first hand. I remember my awe that he could declare Without once breaking his line of chatter Nor coming up for air.

The next hand, I opened the bidding, But that didn't quell the westerly wind. The Mouth still hadn't used the word Pass, He was intent on declaring again.

The Straight Man looked amused, but passed, So we sailed easily into our game. I had just relaxed, when from my port side A bellowed Four Spades came.

They were white and we were red. Hadn't partner lectured me on this situation? Bid one more, I thought he had said, That his pass was an invitation.

All the other tables had finished.
The noise was now a dull roar.
As players began drifting toward our table
To await this final score.

I pondered my bid for what seemed like hours, But The Mouth soon tired of sitting. "Girl in a coma! Call the medics!" he yelled And scared me into bidding.

Five Hearts was barely past my lips When his Double pierced the air So loud, it brought more vultures To watch the New Girl declare.

Odd Person was obviously insulted That our judgment had been attacked. Or maybe it was the flock of kibitzers That made him send it back.

As partner proudly spread his dummy, He cautioned, "Concentrate!" The Mouth had rapid-fired the club ace-king Then a spade, and sat back to wait.

I cursed myself for bidding, For getting us into this fix. But when I finally looked up at dummy, I saw eleven tricks!

I called the space ace with stifled glee. I thought I'd died and gone to heaven. The rest of the tricks, even I could see: Two solid suits down to the seven.

The Mouth's frown told Odd Person this was cold, My claim he was awaiting, But I remembered what I'd been told . . . So I started concentrating.

I took a deep breath and formed my plan. I wouldn't risk a contested claim. I'd carefully play out the entire hand And make my first-ever redoubled game.

I focused all my energy on forming each word. "Small trump," I called to start my plan. And with those two words locked in my head, I played a spade trump from my hand!

"I knew we could beat this!" crowed
The Mouth,
As he won his singleton six.
Through concentration I had found
A way to lose three tricks.

The room erupted in laughter and I in tears. But as I fled from my disgrace, I thought I saw a single look of pity On the Straight Man's face.

I vowed that I would play no more, But the very next day, the telephone rang. Someone I met the night before Was asking me for a game.

So the next Thursday and many after that I discovered how much fun this game could be That the secret to concentration Was having The Mouth across from me.

Two decades later, the volume has dropped, But not the spirit he brings to the game. The Mouth is still my most colorful partner And he can still live up to his name.

The night we won our first regional, The entire ballroom heard him bestow Himself with the dubious credit: "I taught her everything she knows!"

I think back now that if I'd made Five Hearts, If I'd taken a less "memorable" line of play, I'd have remained the nameless New Girl And we'd have gone our separate ways.

So I still thank that redoubled disaster
For bringing such special partners into my life
For today, The Mouth is one of my closest friends
And the Straight Man? I'm his wife.

Members of the Reno Youth Bridge group played in the Junior Game: Sidney Inouye, Harley Broadhead, Alexis Jones and Antonio Rodriguez.

Members of the Reno Youth Bridge group have been playing only 10 to 11 weeks. The lack of experience didn't stop Antonio Rodriguez from making his contract with two overtricks on this deal. Antonio was South, playing with Harley Broadhead. Sitting East-West were brothers Kaleb and Alex Peterson-Taylor

Convention card reminder

Each player is required to have a convention card filled out legibly and on the table throughout a session. Both cards of a partnership must be identical and include the first and last names of each member of the partnership.

determines that neither player has a substantially completed card, the partnership may play only the Standard American Yellow Card and may use only standard carding. This restriction may be lifted only at the beginning of a subsequent round after convention cards have been properly prepared and approved by the director. Further, the partnership will receive a 1/6-board matchpoint penalty for each board played, commencing with the next round and continuing until the restriction is lifted. In IMP team games, penalties shall be at the discretion of the director.

If the director determines the partnership has at least one substantially completed convention card but has not fully complied with ACBL regulations, the director may give warnings or assign such penalties as he deems to be appropriate under the circumstances.

The objective of these warnings and penalties is the encouragement of full compliance with ACBL regulations.

The Gold Coast Congress By Barry Rigal

Australia has two major championships held within the course of six weeks in our winters – their summers.

This year, as always, the Gold Coast hosted the second event. Untypically, we encountered monsoon rain instead of hot sun – but who cares when you're inside for the whole day.

More than 600 tables played in the pairs, then teams. Everyone played the same deals, during the qualifying and finals, but you had a choice of entering open, intermediate, restricted newcomers or Seniors.

A two-session qualifying for the pairs was followed by a three-session final. For the teams, a 12 (or 10)-round qualifying was followed by quarterfinals, semifinals and final.

On the last evening, a free banquet (with wine!) and very few speeches was available to all players.

Duplimates were in use, but the bidding is on paper rather than with bidding boxes. Results are processed almost instantly and on the Internet within 15 minutes. Datum scores for the pairs were also posted together with the draw.

On our first exhibit, Steve Hamaoui (who would surely be able to take on all comers in the "longest consecutive string of vowels in a surname" competition) found himself in a delicate spot.

Hamaoui declared 4♥ and East kicked off with the ♣ A then continued the suit. Steve inferred that East's decision to lead a club marked the ♠ A offside, and the spade honors were surely split. The most likely lie of the cards was that East had been reluctant to lead a spade from three or four to an honor. If West had the ♠K there was no way to keep him off lead, but just in case he had the ♠Q, declarer crossed to a top heart at trick three and led a low spade from dummy to his jack!

Can we all honestly put our hand on our hearts and say we would have risen with the ♠Q? Once East won the ♠K, the deal was over. In fact, the defenders had to cash the ♠A to prevent Hamaoui from making overtricks on a deal where almost everyone else in 4♥ was going down at least a trick

Consider the next deal as a defensive problem. Look just at the South cards and East cards. (Final session one, board 11.)

Almost every tables reached 4♠ here on the lead of ♥8. At every table but two, South failed to focus properly. As Sherlock Holmes said caustically, "You see, Watson, but you do not observe." If the ♥8 is a true card, it must be a doubleton. North would raise hearts if she had three with such limited values. Accordingly, you can infer that declarer has only three minor-suit cards at most, and you have no hope for an extra trick if he has two clubs and one diamond, or three clubs. But if he has two diamonds and one club, you had better shift to a diamond immediately before declarer disposes of his slow loser by setting up a club. Our South duly shifted to a diamond for an 88% result.

In the old days, might this deal have been passed out? Probably not: three honor tricks, etc.,

In 6 no a trump lead correct technique is to play to ruff three clubs in dummy while ruffing two diamonds in hand. You reach this ending after setting up diamonds:

♣ J 10
♦ Q
♠ K 8
♥ K 6 5 4
♠ K 9
♥ Q J 9 7
♠ K 9

Correct technique at this point (particularly because you believe trumps to be 3-1) is to cash the ◆K, pitching your club loser. That way you can regain the lead to draw trumps, and will go down only if North started with a 2=4=4=3 shape. In that case, South would ruff the fourth diamond and lead a club for the trump promotion! This line survives against all other 4-3 diamond breaks, whether or not trumps break. After wrapping up slam it was either humorous or disconcerting for East-West to discover that their teammates had held their opponents to 230 in 3♠.

Let's assume we reach 4 on the predictable club lead (it is not so clear that an attacking lead is warranted when you have a trump void, but let's focus on that). Declarer wins and immediately plays three rounds of hearts. As West, do you ruff high, medium or low – or pitch a diamond? Take your time. Two of those options are immediately fatal, two succeed.

At one table, West pitched a diamond. Steven Burgess threw his club loser and advanced the $\int 4$, and when West played low, so did declarer! Contract made, but the defenders would have prevailed by playing either a high or medium trump (if West plays the jack, declarer wins the queen, crosses to a diamond and leads another heart. West ruffs high and forces declarer with a club, and will eventually obtain trump control).

What if West ruffs low? Declarer overruffs, crosses to a top diamond, and leads a master heart. If West ruffs low, declarer overruffs and crosses to a diamond to lead the fifth heart and pitch his club. If West ruffs high, declarer pitches a club and still has a diamond entry to lead a trump and hold his trump losers to three, so West decides to pitch a diamond on the heart. North throws his club away and leads a trump from dummy, which West wins and he can safely return a club. Declarer must ruff with the 8 or 9, to reach this beautiful ending.

North is on lead with the defenders having scored one trick. Declarer leads a diamond, and West ruffs, to return a club, ruffed low by declarer in hand and over-ruffed in dummy. Now the master heart lets North shake his diamond for the trump coup at trick 12. Isn't that elegant?

At our table the alternative winning defense of ruffing with the $\int J$ was found. Declarer can overruff and go to dummy with a diamond to play a top heart. But the counter then is for West to pitch his diamond and now he retains control. The position transposes into the same variations as at Burgess' table.

With one deal to go the quarterfinal match between Consus Red and a team consisting mainly of Australian Juniors and Barry Goren of the U.S. was neck and neck. The Goren team led by half an IMP.

As a gambling man (and there were quite a few left in the event!) you would not fancy the Goren team's equity here, would you? If 4NT made, the Consus team would gain at least an IMP. If both contracts went down the same number, it would be a win for Goren.

4NT had 10-plus tricks on either a club break or if declarer could take four or more diamond tricks, so I would have put them as 20-1 favorites to win the match. In 4NT, Walczak won the heart lead and tested clubs. Oops! East pitched an encouraging spade – an error for two reasons. He really wanted a diamond continuation, and the more spades he had, the fewer diamonds he could hold. But declarer missed this inference. He needed diamonds to play for four tricks, and with the clubs 5-0 he followed the perfectly sensible but disastrous line of taking two diamond finesses. Goren had shifted to spades at trick three, so the defenders only beat the game one. (Had they played on hearts declarer would have gone down considerably more if he misguessed diamonds).

Thus the fate of 5. would determine the need for overtime. Hung finessed the heart at trick one, won the heart return, and it is arguable if declarer should cash one high club from dummy now. Instead, he played three rounds of diamonds at once, ruffing low when the queen appeared. Now came the top trump from dummy, but it was plain sailing from here on in. Two rounds of hearts stood up, then the spade ace and a spade ruff, followed by the fourth diamond ruffed by West and over-ruffed by dummy. In the three-card ending declarer led a plain card from dummy and ruffed it low. West could over-ruff but then had to lead into the trump tenace at trick 12 to concede the contract.

Mouthing a word I'd not Heard in years, He lowered his rulebook on us.

Nodding his head and Agreeing with himself: "It's really shut-and-dried."

We racked our brains back

Our game went to the pot While I puzzled over "Achy Breaky Heart."

His kind old weathered Face loosened: "I'm sorry, Partner, I muffed the boat."

Was it a fragment
Of my imagination –
Did he cross his eyes?

"Pard, if we play 'Carrot Club,'
They will have us

The semi-mystical system Had us skating on Mighty thin ground.

Toby Cat subdued

My convention card –

Pard took me down a peg leg.

After three put-downs, I was so tired I couldn't Keep my head open.

With an endearing smile:
"Why bite the hand that Lays the big golden egg?"

After the game,
We had two glasses of wine
To tidy us over.

After some more Zen stuff, We simply left it in The lap of the cards.

The no-nonsense director Enjoyed the Daily hellabaloos.

He snatched up his Rulebook and scurried –
Someone had jumped into the gun.

We were taken aback
When our teammates cut
Our throats behind our backs.

"I had length but no strength – sure – But I hit it right On the old nutshell!"

"What time today did you Learn to play bridge?" I sat like a shooting duck.

She was quietly frightening: "Your bidding doesn't Make head or sense."

How lovely if Old Pard Could have languished some Undeserved praise on me.

Setting a trap By Barry Rigal

On this deal from the Thursday evening pairs games, Melih Ozdil of New York City played expertly to land a touchy contract. He was playing with Sharon Goldman.

East started with a low club, and Ozdil took the 9 with the ace. He played the AJ at trick two,

West winning the queen, cashing the ♠A and playing a third round. Ozdil ruffed and played a club. East took the ♣K and persisted with spades. Ozdil ruffed and played a club to dummy's queen, then called for the ♥Q. West covered with the king, Ozdil won the ace and exited with a low heart.

Ozdil had achieved exactly what he hoped for: the defenders had to break the diamond suit. He played low from dummy on the diamond play, winning the •9 from West with the jack, but the •8 in dummy allowed him to finesse against the queen for eight tricks and an excellent score.

Note that East fell into Ozdil's trap. When he is in with the ♣K, if East simply exits with a club, Ozdil could ruff a spade to eliminate that suit, but then he would have to depend on East's holding the doubleton ♥K and would go down. If Ozdil, in dummy for the last time with the ♣Q, played the ♥Q and exited with a heart, East could win and then play his spade. Forced to play diamonds himself, Ozdil would have had to lose two tricks in the suit for one down in his contract.

(1) Forcing. (2) Agreed break in tempo (BIT).

Facts: The contract was 3NT by South, making six after the 4 lead. The director was called after the play of the deal was completed. There was agreement that South broke tempo before passing Director's Ruling: The director judged that, although the BIT suggests action over inaction, it did not indicate any specific action. Several "A" players were consulted about North's call over 2. All felt that pass was not a logical alternative. Therefore, the director allowed the table result of 3NT by South making six, and a score of North-South plus 690, to stand.

The Appeal: East-West appealed the director's decision and all four players attended the hearing. Neither side put forward any facts contrary to those above.

The Decision: While the pass by South of 2. was extraordinary, it was unanimous that North had a clear-cut bid. There was no claim by the appellants or reason to think that the huddle made 3♥ more attractive than a scrambling 2NT or 3♦, and in any case South would surely have bid 3NT over either. The committee briefly wondered whether the manner in which South bid 3NT might have swayed North to pass, but no such allegation was made by East-West.

The appellants were informed of the poll results during the screening process but persisted with the appeal. The committee assessed an Appeal Without Merit Warning (AWMW) to East-West.

- (4) Break in tempo.

Facts: The final contract was 3♥ by South, making three, after the lead of the $4. That resulted in plus 140 for North-South. The director was called initially after the 3. bid and again after the play was completed.

All players agreed that there was a BIT by South prior to the second double.

Director's ruling: The BIT was judged to demonstrably suggest that bidding (by North) would be more successful than passing, which was judged to be a logical alternative to bidding. Therefore, the contract was changed to 2♠ doubled by East down one (East-West minus 100 and North-South plus 100).

The Appeal: North-South appealed the director's decision. West was the only player who did not attend the hearing.

North argued that by doubling 2♥ with such scant values, it is clear from his hand that he was always planning on completing the description of his shape by bidding 3. South was concerned that the 3♥ contract could have been defeated with a club lead, and that East-West were getting a twoway shot at a good result.

The director read the applicable rules to the appellants, and the committee informed them that although Deep Finesse was able to defeat 3♥, leading from a spade sequence was not the sort of egregious defensive error that a committee would take into consideration.

The Decision: The committee asked the director for poll results. Not surprisingly, it was difficult to find players who believed doubling 2♥ with the North hand was the right action. An initial poll had some passing the second double, but a subsequent poll of players with fewer than 2000 masterpoints had six of six bidding on with the North hand.

The committee agreed that there was a hesitation, and that bidding on was made more attractive by that hesitation. The committee did not feel, however, that any player who doubled 2♥ with such scant values would give passing even a momentary consideration, and thus ruled that passing was not a logical alternative.

The table result of 3♥ making three was restored.

Committee members: Hendrik Sharples (chair), Abby Heitner, Ed Lazarus, John Lusky and Victor King.

The Insider

The Bulletin Boys asked the Insider to keep it short today – they have lots of real news to report. Spring in Reno is always a great tournament and 2010 has proven to be no exception. The local hosts, led by Kathy, have made us all feel welcome - from handing out another great tote bag to some really good late night food, from the coffee mugs given to winners to the hard work by all the volunteers – they have treated us all to an excellent 10 days. The tournament directors, captained by Chris and John, have done their usual fantastic job. From the experienced pros who have worked countless to the newer, up-and-coming directors who came to town for training, they all got the games going on time, kept things moving, resolved disputes and proved once again they are the best directors anywhere in the world. The caddies have been great. The service from the hotel – keeping the playing rooms clean, bringing water, resetting hundreds of chairs overnight, moving walls, maintaining comfortable playing conditions, etc. - has been excellent. And, of course, thank you to all you who came and played. The ACBL, and the Insider in particular, appreciate all of you.

In key news, the Insider got a text late vesterday that said the key has been found. It was on the bathroom counter of the S.C.'s luxury master suite in Memphis. It is expected that the last of the river rock will be moved away from the front door by Wednesday and that interior work on the New Amazing Building will be restarted the next day. The Insider will be there to report progress. Despite a possible delay caused by changes in the office layout – the designers will need to reconfigure some executive space for Right-Hand Maiden – ACBL Horn Lake should be up and running by mid-April. Watch the web site for details and pictures. We anticipate a few phone and internet service interruptions during the actual move but fully expect things to go smoothly now that a duplicate key has been made.

Thank you for coming to Reno. Thank you for an excellent tournament. We look forward to seeing all of you in New Orleans in July.

Lighter than air

This deal, from the first semifinal session of the Vanderbilt Knockout Teams, was played four times. At teach table, the contract was 7. The grand slam was defeated three of the four times.

In the Martin De Knijff – Martin Fleisher match, De Knijff had reason to rue a super-light overcall.

Dlr: South 4 ♥ Q 9 8 3 2 Vul: None ♦ Q 9 8 3 2 ♣ 63 ♠ A 10 5 2 ▲ K Q 9 8 3 4 4 3 ♥ A K J 10 6 ♦ A K 7 ♦ 4 4 10 9 8 4 ♣ A K ▲ J 7 6 ♥ 5 ♦ J 10 6 5 ♣ QJ752

At all four tables, the opening lead against 7♠ by East was a low spade. At two of the tables, declarer took two rounds of trumps, followed by the ♥A and ♥K. When South ruffed the second heart, that was it – minus 50. When Tor Helness of the Pierre Zimmerman squad played it, he pulled three rounds of trumps, tested clubs in case an opponent had Q-J-x or Q-J doubleton, then played two high hearts. He conceded one down when South showed out.

When De Knijff and Frederic Wrang played against Bobby Levin and Steve Weinstein, this was Weinstein won the trump lead and pulled three rounds of the suit, cashed the ♥A and entered dummy with a diamond. He then finessed in hearts and claimed. He could ruff one of his losing hearts in dummy and pitch the other on a high diamond. Plus 1510 was good for 17 IMPs to the Fleisher squad.

Reno 2004: A look back

Here are some more of the interesting deals:

How to score 2230 By Larry Cohen

I've had a bad history with the meaning of redoubled contracts. It was nice to be on the right side of one on this deal:

| Dlr: Sout | h | | | |

| Vul: Both | ♥ A 6 | 4 | | |

East might have thought her partner's pass was for penalty, or maybe she was just hoping to avoid a big number. After all, 1 deredoubled isn't game.

A diamond was led to the queen and declarer's ace. There is no way to make all 13 tricks, but 12 tricks were easy. The score we entered was 2230—the five redoubled overtricks are 2000, then 20 doubled and redoubled is 80 plus 100 for the insult and 50 for the partial. And now you know how to score 2230.

What's your worst action at the table?

By Barry Rigal

The worst thing you can do at the bridge table is to squeeze your partner . . . or is it to endplay him? What if you have the choice?

Dave Berkowitz, playing with Larry Cohen, saw he had his work cut out for him when he viewed the dummy. South started with the ♥J, ducked, and the ♥10 ducked. Berkowitz ruffed the third heart as the ace fell from North. He led a club and South climbed with the ace. He could have scored a club ruff at this point by continuing the suit, but apparently he thought he had a trump trick anyway. Instead, he led a diamond to partner's king. Berkowitz won the diamond continuation in dummy with the ace.

At this point, Berkowitz knew South didn't have the ♥A, the ♦K or the ♣K, so it was more than likely that South had the trump queen for his opening bid. He led a spade to the king, passed the ♠J and crossed to dummy's trump ace. Declarer was happy to find the trumps 3–3. Now he faced this ending:

Berkowitz led the ♣Q. What is North to do? If North wins with the king, Berkowitz will unblock the 10 and win the forced club return in dummy, squeezing South. If North ducks to avoid rectifying the count, Berkowitz would retain the lead in dummy and exit with the ♥Q to endplay South in diamonds. Either way, Berkowitz had his eight tricks and his contract.

Pity poor East

The defenders didn't do anything terribly wrong on this deal, but John Stiefel found the route to a fine score when the defense slipped a bit.

- (1) Weak hand asks partner to bid 3♣.
- (2) Forced.
- (3) 0–7 high-card points.

If West had led his singleton diamond, the defense might have fared better, but certainly the ♠K is more than reasonable. After some thought, Stiefel decided to win — he didn't want a switch to diamonds. He finessed the ♣Q successfully and went after trumps. He eyed West's ♥8 with suspicion as he played the 10 from dummy and East ducked smoothly.

East is a good player, so Stiefel feared that West's 8 might have been a singleton. If that was the case, East would win the next trump trick with the queen, cash the ace and lead a fourth heart. Now declarer would have an extra loser in spades. So Stiefel decided to start on diamonds. He led low from dummy and won with his jack when East played low. When he led another diamond, West ruffed in with the queen and cashed the AQ. Then Fleisher's teammates are Mike Kamil, Chip Martel, Lew Stansby, Bobby Levin and Steve Weinstein.

Both semifinal matches were hard-fought affairs. Zimmerman jumped out to a 35-18 lead against the Aubrey Strul squad and led 73-37 at the half, but Strul and company (Michael Becker, Fulvio Fantoni, Claudio Nunes, Erik Saelensminde and Boye Brogeland) won the third set 70-28 to take a 107-101 lead.

Midway through the fourth quarter, Strul was ahead 118-109 before giving up swings of 12 and 13 IMPs on consecutive board. There was very little scoring from that point, and the final score was 134-127 for Zimmerman.

The Fleisher- Martin De Knijff match was close at the half, with De Knijff ahead 72-63. With a quarter to go, De Knijff was up 111-101. With De Knijff up 115-101, Fleisher scored 33 unanswered IMPs to pull away, finishing with a 158-129 victory.

De Knijff, of Las Vegas, was playing with Bjorn Fallenius, a Swede living in New York, plus Swedish national players Frederic Wrang, Peter Fredin, Fredrik Nystrom and Peter Bertheau.

came the \(\blacktriangle J \), ruffed in dummy with the king and overruffed by East

East could have done better at this point by switching to a club — it would have broken up the ensuing end position. But he actually led his last trump. Stiefel carefully won this with the 10 and then led the ♥7 to his 9.

This was the four-card ending:

Stiefel led his last trump — the $\checkmark 6$ — and pitched dummy's $\checkmark Q$. He still had the $\checkmark A$ and two clubs in the dummy and A and two low diamonds in his hand. East had to discard. It was the perfect criss-cross squeeze. If East threw a diamond, Stiefel would cash the $\checkmark A$ and get back to his hand with the A for another diamond trick. If East discarded a club, Stiefel would cross to the A and get back to dummy with the A and cash his good club.

Transfer squeeze

This deal occurred in the Vanderbilt.

♠ Q 8 ♥ KJ2 ♦ J642 ♣ K Q 5 3 ♠ 9 7 4 ▲ J 10 6 3 2 ♥ 10 6 4 ♥ O 7 3 ♦ K 10 7 ♦ 9 5 4 10 9 7 4 ♣ J86 ♠ A K 5 ♥ A 9 8 5 ♦ AQ83 ♣ A 2

At both tables, South declared 6NT. Jeff Roman received the opening lead of the ♠7 which he won in dummy with the queen. A diamond to the queen held when West ducked, and Roman continued with the ♠A and a third diamond. West took the king and continued with the ♠9. Roman won the ace and took stock.

With 11 tricks assured, the 12th could come from taking the heart finesse. Roman, however, elected to try for a squeeze by playing the ♥A and a heart to the king. This strategy will work whenever an opponent is holding three or more hearts to the queen and four or more clubs (or when the ♥Q drops doubleton or singleton).

On the actual layout, however, neither defender had such a hand, so the squeeze failed, down one.

The play at the other table began almost identically, and declarer, Carolyn Lynch, also decided against the heart finesse in favor of a possible squeeze. Lynch tried a slightly different approach. She played a heart to the king and called for dummy's ♥J. East covered and Lynch won the ace. This was the position:

Reno 2004

When Lynch played the last diamond, West was squeezed. He could discard a spade, but the AK would be the last nail in the coffin.

Lynch's line of play transferred the threat to the defender holding long clubs and the ♥10 instead of the ♥Q. Making six earned Lynch's squad 17 IMPs.

The right time to bid a minor

Bobby Wolff was faced with a tough decision on his fourth bid. He knew his side had quite a few tricks in notrump, but would he get in before the opponents ran five tricks? He decided that 5 ◆ offered better chances.

Bidding 5 ♦ left it up to Sidney Lazard to find 11 tricks. The opening heart lead went to dummy's ace and Lazard immediately called for a club. West put up the queen and led the ♦ A and another diamond to dummy's 10. Lazard ruffed a club, got back to dummy with a heart ruff and ruffed another club. After cashing the ♦ K, he led a spade to the ace and ruffed a third club. The ace fell from East, so Lazard was able to go to dummy's ♠ K and cash the long club for his 11th trick.

Wolff was right in his assessment. The defense can take four clubs and the \blacklozenge A for down one, and they would get two chances to do so. The first opportunity would be on opening lead. The second chance would come when West took his \blacklozenge A.
